

FCRA Basic Certificate Renewal

FCRA Basic Certificate is valid for two years. There are two options for FCRA Basic Certificate Renewal – taking the renewal exam or earning credits by attending NAPBS educational tracks at conferences and webinars. For FCRA Basic Certification Renewal, you must submit your Professional Development Credits (PDCs) or take the renewal exam by the end of your two-year certificate period.

Five PDCs are needed to qualify for FCRA Basic Certification Renewal. PDCs must be submitted to NAPBS by the end of the two-year renewal period. Once the renewal application is complete and has been approved, your next two-year certification period will begin from your existing end date. See below for registration and completion details.

The following NAPBS educational sessions and webinars (both live and recorded) qualify for PDCs. Note: Sessions noted MY (Mid-Year Conference) or AC (Annual Conference) are available in live format only. Webinar recordings are only available for one year following the live broadcast date.

Instructions to Renew Using PDC Credits

Individuals must independently track the name and date attended of the five qualifying webinars and sessions from the list above. Prior to the date a certificate expires and to receive credit for attended PDC sessions for Basic Certificate Renewal, individuals must purchase the PDC course, HERE. NAPBS will then send a form to formally list five attended qualifying sessions from the above list for PDC credit. This form must be returned to NAPBS on or before a certificate expires. Participation in each session will be verified once the form is received by NAPBS. Note that NAPBS must receive the Basic Certificate Renewal via PDC purchase and completed attendance form, on or before the date a certificate expires to ensure no lapse in certificate status.
